

$2,500 Investors – Boise Brewing

How often will secret menu items be available?

We're shooting for once a month, though this is just a guideline. Each item will be a unique creation so requires both available ingredients and the vision for the dish. We'll do our best to deliver about once a month but we would be remiss to guarantee the frequency.

I am a current investor. Do I need to invest an additional $2,500?

No! We're only looking for $2,500 in total. So if you invested $1,000 in our first round to get the brewery open, we're only looking for an additional $1,500.

My spouse and I each invested $1,000 separately. What do we need to do?

This is a quirk of the language in our subscription agreement. There's a minimum of $1,000 per investment. So even though you as a couple have already invested $2,000, we would be in violation of our own subscription agreement to accept a $500 investment, unfortunately. We do need a full additional $1,000 investment.

We'll do our best to update our legal documents to only invest an additional $500, though we're not sure as to feasibility or timing at this point.

Will secret menu items have limited supply?

Probably. It all depends on availability and process. Some of the time there will be 30 lamb chops that we can get our hands on. So, we'll be restricted to 30 orders. Other times we might be able to do a pre-order and deliver secret items to whoever wants one.

I am not sure how much I've invested previously

As a couple, can we both get the secret sauce?

Absolutely! We won't cause any marital strife making the two of you decide who gets the goods and who doesn't.

Can I send it to my friends? Share it with a large group?

Sorry, no. It's only for you and a significant other. We want to make sure we get as much of the secret items to our second-tier investors first.

Are secret menu items free?

Sadly, no. We want to protect our owner's interests the best we can. That means ensuring that we're making ends meet in the kitchen!
